

TERMS OF USE

By accessing and/or using this website, you are deemed to accept the following Terms of Use relating to access to and use of this website and all information on this website.

Purpose

The purpose of this website is to enable McRae Law Limited ("MLL") to provide general information. Material on this website does not constitute legal or other advice.

MLL does not warrant that this website or the information on it is current. MLL does not accept any responsibility to update this website or the information on it.

Links from other sites to this website and links from this website to external ones do not imply any endorsement or responsibility either way.

This website is not an offer to represent you. Any communication via this website may not be private, secure or privileged. Please seek independent advice before acting on any information on this website.

Intellectual property

MLL owns all copyright and other intellectual property rights in this website and all information on this website, except for third party content that may be accessed through this website. You may only access and use this website for your personal, non-commercial purposes, provided any printing is in limited copies, and any storage is temporary. Any other use of this website or the information on it, without the prior written approval of MLL, is prohibited.

Your rights in relation to any third party content on this website are subject to the rights of the third party in that content.

Disclaimer of liability

To the fullest extent permitted by law, MLL does not accept any responsibility or liability (whether in contract or in tort (including negligence), equity or otherwise) for this website (or any other website linked to this website) or its access or use (or for any inability to access or use it) or for any material published (or not published) on or accessed through this website.

Governing law

This website, its access and use, these Terms of Use, and all information on this website, shall be governed by, and are to be interpreted in accordance with, New Zealand law and New Zealand Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in relation to such matters.
